

Shoto Todoroki is a quiet, reserved lad, but in spite of his stoic personality, he tends to get rather raunchy burps. Todoroki is the type to turn his head with his fist in front of his mouth as a long, rolling belch erupts out from past his small mouth, and is immediately followed up by a shorter but thicker belch and a softer burp right after that. As a matter of fact, Todoroki almost never just burps once. Any time he feels pressure in his stomach brewing and building up, it will come out as a chain-belch, where the first one rolls out of him, the second one has more force and depth to it, and maybe there's a smaller little afterburp or two and a relieved little huff from Todoroki, who promptly carries on as if nothing happened.

The reason is because, canonically, Todoroki has a strong stomach. When he, Bakugou, Kirishima and Camie did the tilt-a-whirl, Todoroki was the only one who wasn't on the verge of puking or passing out, but noted he felt a little nauseous. So when there's a strong reaction in his stomach, it just makes him a bit gassy, like if he ate something that didn't agree with him. However, this is also due to the combination of his flaming and freezing quirk. The two conflicting powers, when used a lot in a training session, for example, will leave his body hot and cool from his left and right, which creates a subtle fluctuation right down the middle, namely, Todoroki's stomach. So if he's used both quirks a lot, then once the dust settles, Todoroki's going to find himself burping a lot, and because so much gas is brewing in his gut all at once, it just keeps coming no matter how many times he belches, which is why it's often a back-to-back deal with him.

He seldom has any reactions or embarrassment about burping around others. Todoroki has utterly nonexistent social skills and is bad at picking up on cues. To him, it's a perfectly natural bodily function, so it only makes sense to just let it rip anytime he feels pressure and avoid a potential stomachache that could come from letting gas simmer. Anytime one of the girls gets grossed out, he's genuinely confused, asking why they're grossed out, and if they say it's because he burped, he'll tilt his head and say, "That's just a basic bodily function. Don't you burp too?" And usually, someone around him will tell him that you "don't just ask girls that," but he's being 100% sincere because of course he is.

Sometimes, gas will build up in his belly, making it just slightly bloated, and when that happens, Todoroki will feel a bit miserable, before holding his stomach firmly, clenching down, and letting rip an incredibly long, throaty belch that has a really brassy, rumbling feel to it; like it came from the depths of Todoroki's belly. But those rare big ones are the only ones he has a real reaction to, which, upon finally expelled, Todoroki will groan or sigh heavily with relief as he slumps back and rubs his deflated stomach in a relieved manner, even giving it a few light, uncharacteristic pats of satisfaction. He gets those same much larger, heavier burps if he's bloated from eating a little too much. In those instances, Todoroki is leaning back, massaging his subtly bulging belly, and one really harsh belch later, he's left moaning blissfully.